

BIBLIOGRAPHY

- Davis, Allen F. Spearheads For Reform, The Social Settlements and the Progressive Movement, 1890-1914. New Brunswick, N.J.: Rutgers University Press, 1984 (new edition). Oxford: Oxford University Press, 1967 (original edition).
- Feeney, Eleanor S. "A Brief History of the Northwestern University Settlement," Thesis. University of Chicago, 1942.
- Traweck, Dean. "Northwestern University Settlement: Embodiment of a Concept." Thesis. Northwestern University, 1976.
- Vittum, Harriet E. "Those Fifty Years: A Brief Story of Northwestern University Settlement Association for its Organizers, Supporters, Workers and Friends," 1940. (Northwestern University Archives.)
- Vittum, Harriet E. "Survey," 1923. (Northwestern University Archives.)
- Ware, Betty F. "Report on the Northwestern University Settlement for the Men's Executive Board," 1940. (Northwestern University Archives.)

A Note on the Sources

This history is indebted to several other histories of Northwestern University Settlement, especially those written by Betty Ware, Eleanor Feeney and Dean Traweck from which I drew liberally.

Allen Davis also provided valuable insight into the settlement movement in his book, Spearheads For Reform.

In addition to these histories, I relied heavily on Settlement documents that were recovered from the Settlement House and now are being catalogued at Northwestern University's library. The documents include decades worth of copies of The Neighbor, annual reports and minutes of early Council meetings as well as miscellaneous Settlement documents, pamphlets and notebooks. There was a wealth of information, and the material certainly recommends itself to further research and scholarship.

Mark Wukas

I would like to thank the following people and acknowledge my debt to them in preparing this informal history of Northwestern University Settlement:

First and foremost, my gratitude goes to Mrs. Ellerth Overboe, chairman of the History Committee, Doris' infectious enthusiasm for the project made her my most valuable asset and ally. Next, I would like to thank Ron Manderschied for his willingness to take time from his busy schedule to confer repeatedly on the Settlement history. I would also like to thank the women on the History Committee, who furnished most of my research and still are sifting through literally thousands of documents. And finally, my thanks to Settlement staff members, who always were willing to answer my outsider's questions about their wonderful work.

Mark Wukas

About the Author

Mark Wukas is a Chicago-based freelance writer. A native South Sider and student of Chicago history, he previously worked as a reporter for United Press International and City New Bureau. He received his Masters degree in English in 1979 and his Bachelor of Arts degree in history and English in 1977 from the University of Illinois at Urbana-Champaign. He graduated from Quigley Seminary South in 1973.